TO THE PUBLIC.

THE subscriber, after a lapse of time necessarily consumed in the preparation of his house, respectfully announces to the citizens of Alexandria, as well as the community at large, that he has taken for a term of years that noted and eligible establishment known by the name of the CITY HOTEL, and once occupied by Mr. Gadsby, whose distinguished abilities as a Publican gave it an éclat which the subscriber hopes to preserve by his unremitting exertions in affording to all those who may confer on him the favor of their patronage, genteel and comfortable accommodations. The subscriber deems it unnecessary to indicate the multiplicity of conveniences attached to the City Hotel, and will only submit a description to that portion of travellers who have so generally attested its numerous advantages.

James Brook.

NOTICE.

LAST NIGHT between the hours of seven and eight o'clock, was stolen from the house formerly occupied by Mr. Lawes, now occupied by Miss Helen Gullatt, two Bed-quilts, one of which being remarkable had a large sized leaf with a dark ground diamond, being also of furniture calico, and quilted by the leaf, also by the diamond—the other being a diamond and star, with a large star in the center, quilted chiefly in shells—also a blanket and linen sheet. Whoever will apprehend the thief, and deliver the things to this office, or to Miss Helen Gullatt, shall be generously rewarded. Should they be offered for sale, it is requested they may be exposed and information given as above mentioned.

Price 1 Dollar,
GLENCARN;

OR THE DISAPPOINTMENTS OF YOUTH, A NOVEL.

By GEORGE WATTESTON, Esq. OF WASHINGTON CITY, Author of the Lawyer and Child of Feeling.

The celebrity of this author's "LAWYER," and "CHILD OF FEELING" induced the publishers to engage in this work, and without detracting from the merits of the former, feel themselves justified in stating that his GLENCARN is superior to either. It is submitted without further recommendation, with a wish, that the American reviewers may give further encouragement to this young gentleman's endeavors to entertain, instruct and moralize his fellow citizens, in a way seemingly well calculated to attract their attention.

WAS STOLEN from the subscriber's stable, in this town, on Sunday night last, the 18th instant, a light SORREL HORSE, with a long and large blaze in his face, flaxen mane, and tail nearly of the same color, but not so white. This horse is supposed to be about 14 or 14 and half hands high, and 6 or 7 years old—he is compact, remarkable for the excellence of his gait, carries his head rather low, and a good tail though neither nick'd nor bob'd—no artificial marks recollected—he may however be easily known by an examination of his eyes which will show that he has been recently cut for the hooks, and by a trick of starting and turning round when he meets another horse. The above reward will be given for the horse and thief, and TEN DOLLARS with all reasonable charges for the horse alone.

If there is sufficient foundation for the imputation of improper conduct in the following "Bulletin," the committee of congress on military subjects, will undoubtedly arraign the guilty; if otherwise, they will acquit the implicated; so that exact justice may be awarded. ## BULLETIN

Of the Grand Army of the Mississippi, dated from Fort Dearborn.

The general in chief showed himself at camp the other day. Being pressed with weighty matters, in relation to his own person, he could not think enough, and did not know enough of the army, to sketch a relation of its movements, and the task of drawing up a bulletin devolved on one of the staff.

Owing to the obnoxious of the secretary of war, and his weak fears for the safety and health of the troops, the army was obliged in the month of September, to leave its much beloved Camp Terre aux Boes.—A eligible spot was discovered by the general in chief, and his most unequivocal friend Gov. W. C. C. In the month of June it was a complete marsh covered with water and overgrown with trees. By two months constant and indefatigable labor, it was not only cleared of its trees, but by throwing up an elegant levee half a mile in extent, and by digging a large canal, into which was run a number of ditches, the ground became very nearly dry.—But alas! we enjoyed not the fruits of our fatigue.—The general, though filled with anxiety to increase promotion among the officers by the diminution of their number, could no longer pause on the positive commands of the secretary. The troops moved by detachments on different days between the 10th and 18th September, and on the 20th were concentrated at the camp opposite N. Orleans. With no small regret, a farewell was bidden to the immortal Camp Terre aux Boes. This regret was diminished by the reflection that M. Laasase, the general's host, had a field ready prepared for the culture of sugar.

Having deposited in the hospital at N. Orleans, those soldiers who would die in a few days, the army began its movements for Washington, Mississippi territory.—The military agent not having money to purchase a sufficiency of transport, the citizens of New Orleans gave and loaned such old boats as were drying and rotting on the banks of the river. It was deemed expedient to accept only as many as the strength of the army could well manage.—Two and three companies were stowed in some of the boats in order to keep warm and diffuse social glee. The general in chief being indisposed in the city, was not pleased to accompany his forces. He was well satisfied that nothing could be said against the profuse extravagance of the mode of movement, and telling the army to go, kept head quarters yet a while at the commandant's!

The command devolved on major Backus, of dragoons. The land and naval forces kept close together, peradventure an attack. Such as could walk, walked; such as could row, rowed; such as could not stand, sat down; such as could not sit, lay down. Thus comfortably fixed, the marches advanced. Nothing occurred of moment in several days. There were a few unavoidable deaths. Major Backus became indisposed, the troops appeared in small straggling parties extending not more than four or five miles along the river.—Major Backus's indisposition increasing to sickness, captain Darrington of the 3d infantry took command. The front of the army was halted. In about three hours the van came up. Being thrown into marching order they proceeded.

All the quarter masters being sick the commanding officer was obliged to move ahead to select proper ground for encampment. During his absence an action took place unheard of in the annals of Opelousas steers back. The army was advancing to Opelousas, when they row past the army of the Opelousas. On either side were deep ditches, on the one side a lofty fence, on the other the river. A reciprocal halt took place. The Opelousas appeared hostile. The army filed off to the right and gave their opponents the road. The army resumed its former order and proceeded. Suddenly the Opelousas came to the right about, and pushed furiously against our rear, carried consternation through the ranks, not being prepared for such an engagement, and the wily enemy aiming at our rear, the only resource was flight. As soon as possible we threw ourselves into the ditches, precipitated ourselves down the banks of the river, and climbed up the fence. The enemy continued the charge for more than a mile. Then, by the exertions of their drivers, they were inclosed in a pen. Such of the army as was able to move, formed and proceeded. Reaching the ground of encampment, the unexpected, novel, and disastrous affair was reported to the commanding officer, who despatched a party to bring in the wounded.

On the 29th of September, at Bayou Plaquemine, lieutenant-col. Beall, who arrived from New Orleans, takes command. On the 3d of October, the army reached Point Couper. A halt of two days ensued. It became indispensable to establish a hospital at this place. There being no public funds, the hospital owes its erection to the voluntary donations of the officers and surgeons. An account was received that the general in chief had left the city, and was coming after us!! But not esteeming it prudent to breathe the unwholesome air of the camp, would retrace a while with an old friend at Baton Rouge!! Fifteen miles above Point Couper, the whole army entered the boats. This was fortunately attended with no difficulty—the department of the dead having made sufficient room for the living. By the 17th of October, the army encamped at Fort Adams. Another hospital is established here. Between Fort Adams and Natchez, no incident occurred worthy notice. There was no other battle, with visible foe. Grim Death, continued to wage without cessation his destructive wars. Against this foe, our troops could only show their courage, without evincing their prowess. The army had now become extremely expert in the performance of funeral ceremonies. In the morning, the first duty was to bury the dead. In the evening, the first duty was to bury the dead. For the sake of economy, and conciseness of operation, the deceased being placed about one foot in the ground, was covered with his blanket and hid by a few spades of earth—the cheapest and most speedy work imaginable!! The gen. in chief, it is understood, has bestowed his commendations on this subject, observing, that "it is in unison with his ideas of economy, corresponds precisely with his notions of the value of time, and his conceptions of the preciousness of labor."

About the last of October, the troops reached Natchez. It is supposed we lost not more than four hundred men on our march. By intelligence received from various hospitals below, it seems that the sick deposited in them, are not all yet dead.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT.

From the Western Centinel, printed at Knoxville, (Tenn.)

THE GRAND ARMY DEFEATED.

It is distressing to learn from a late Natchez paper, that the American army was attacked on its way from the swamps below New-Orleans, to the high lands near Natchez.

The particulars of the unfortunate affair are as follows: Between New-Orleans and Baton Rouge, the army had got into a narrow defile, having on its right a deep ravine joined to an extensive morass; on its left the Mississippi river. In this situation it was approached by a drove of pampered Opelousa bullocks, bonded for the N. Orleans market. At this moment an awful pause took place, and the prudent on both sides had hopes that the effusion of human blood might be prevented, but this silence was of short duration, when the bullocks, goaded by their drivers, rushed on like a legion of devils, prostrating every thing that opposed their passage; fortunately no lives were lost, but the number of wounded is very considerable, entirely owing to the feeble state of the soldiers, the most of whom could not walk, but saved their lives by crawling down the river bank or into the ravine. This act of hostility on the part of the bullocks and their drivers has roused the commander in chief to demand an explanation of this insult on his invincible legions.

The apology made by the drivers for themselves and their bullocks, was still more outrageous than their conduct: they insisted that they had all come from the Red River Swamps, and had been accustomed to the sight of Alligators and Frogs, and that they could not recognise in the general's soldiers the appearance of men, therefore, they had taken them for a flight of alligators and frogs who were about to exchange the Sugar Swamps of the Mississippi for the undisturbed and more healthy swamps of Red River. These drivers are still under trial, and should any of them be found to have received Spanish pay, or to be of Burr's party, they certainly will be shipped to Washington city, any thing contained in the writ of habeas corpus to the contrary notwithstanding.

FROM THE BOSTON GAZETTE.

Mr. DANA, of Connecticut, is undoubtedly a man of abilities and virtue; but he is certainly not so correct and true a man, upon all questions, as his predecessor, at the head of the delegation from Connecticut. Mr. Griswold—or as the late excellent Mr. Tracy, of that state.

He sometimes sacrifices a little to a disposition to be witty, and too often betrays the lawyer. He is also apt to be ironical—all this is injurious in a country, where speeches are published, and where every man has not the refinement to discern between irony and plain dealing.

Besides, he is too prone to play, what is called the back game, which is always a dangerous one. When he is persuaded, his adversaries are as averse to a measure as he is, he affects to drive them up to it, though, if they should take him at his word, he would be extremely mortified.

He is very much inclined, also, to spoil a good speech by concessions. He selects one particular ground, and often, not the strongest, and in order to gain a more patient hearing upon that, he concedes almost every other part of the argument. I am sorry to be obliged to make these remarks; but if the federal party are to be presumed to approve of every thing said or conceded by their representatives, our condition would be an unfortunate one. The truth is, that so long as speeches of members are made public, so long great sacrifices of independence will be made by our representatives.

The above remarks were produced by Mr. Dana's conduct, in relation to Burwell's war resolution—his convey and arming motion. Mr. Dana hailed it as a good omen, and proposed a new resolution, prescribing the licences for arming, and the conditions of the bonds. The condition, proposed by Mr. Dana, has this clause, "that the ship shall not violate the rules of public law, acknowledged by the U. S."

Now, I beg leave to ask, if our ships are to arm under such loose conditions, whether a war will not be the inevitable consequence? If a ship is found going directly from Guadalupe to France, she is within the public law acknowledged by the United States, and yet she will be certainly condemned, if taken by the British. If our ships attempt to force a trade against the British orders in council, a war will be the inevitable consequence, and it would be more nearly to declare war at once. There is not an equal danger of irritation from captures by France. She can do no act, which could rouse our citizens against her. We expect injustice from her, to its utmost point, and we are neither surprised or provoked when it comes.

But every battle—every drop of blood, which should flow in such a contest, for a forced trade, by British hands, would make a stain, which a century could not wash away. Besides, I consider such a law as only alluring the desperate and adventurous into a conflict, in which, nine out of ten will perish, or be ruined, and in which, they will not be supported by the government, or pitied by the people.

By the same law, it is proposed by Mr. Dana, that it shall be provided, that no one shall violate actual blockade.

Now what is an actual blockade? Is it to be settled according to the armed neutrality of 1780, where there is an imminent danger of entry?

Upon this rule, what part of France is not now actually blockaded? When not one ship in fifty can get in, without speaking an English cruiser?

How difficult will it be to decide this question!! Ought not Congress, if such a law must pass, which Heaven avert! ought not Congress, rather to enumerate the places to which a ship may lawfully go, than to trust it to the discretion of every ignorant or hot-headed ship master?

NORFOLK, Feb. 19.

Extract of a letter from Ancha Island, to a gentleman in this place, dated February, 1810.

"There is an American brig here which was at Beutien about four months ago, when it was taken possession of by the British, and by the capture of that place they got possession of a very large French frigate and two rich British East-Indiamen, which she had taken a short time before.—The Isle of France had been blockaded for some time by 13 sail of men of war, and it was their intention to take possession (aided by the British and East-India company's ships) of the island by the month of April. Batavia was also strongly blockaded.

"I am this moment informed by a gentleman of respectability in Savannah, that there is certainly a privateer off that bar, which has been fitted clandestinely out of that port, and has received her crew from Charleston by pilot-boats—She is a sch'r. of about 140 tons burthen, and it is said mounts 16 guns. Her object is believed to be the capture of the British trade from this island."

IN HAMPTON ROADS.

Schooner Lana, Martin, 13 weeks from Konigsburg, (Prussia) bound to Baltimore, in distress, having experienced continual gales of wind, in which she carried away main boom, gaff, foreward, sprung the bowsprit, and crew sick—cargo, hemp and iron—for Smith and Buchanan, Baltimore.

Schooner Richmond, Finney, 10 days from the Havana, bound to Hampton Roads. Sailed in company with sloop Sally, Nunn, for Bristol, Rhode-Island; brig Favorite, Sage, of Middleton, for New-Ork; schooner Eliza, Martin, for Bristol, Rhode-Island. Left there 7th instant, brig Commerce, Allen, just arrived from Bristol, Rhode-Island; Nancy, Read, for Bristol, R. I. in ten days; Motley, for Portland, in 5 days. The schooner Harriet, Butler, of and from this port, arrived there five days before. Flour $14, dull; beef 18, pork 20. Captain V. informs us, that a Spanish government brig arrived at the Havana, bringing intelligence that the Spanish patriots cause was hopeless—that the French were in possession of the whole of Spain with the exception of Cadiz, and that means would be speedily resorted to for the destruction of that city.

MOST respectfully ventures to apprise the Ladies and Gentlemen of this good city, that he has chosen Monday next for the commencement of his Imperial career.

The faculty which the Emperor possesses, being inherent and incommunicable, cannot, of course, be attained by practice, and is given to but few. Beauty, that "lost, fairest work," are first to be addressed.—The Emperor will attend them professionally at five seconds' notice, at their houses, where he will execute in the antique or modern style; either that in which the heroic Maid of Orleans chose, to lead her brave Gauls to the charge;—that in which the Empress Josephine appears at her first chop levees (Armstrong not admitted) on that in which the lovely Princess Jerome Patterson Napoleon, now at Washington, with more than chymic power, turns to combustion the heart of every unfortunate gazer. It belongs alone, (in our good District of Columbia) to Richard 1st, to give the human face that exquisitely interesting air of negligent sweetness so long combed and frizzled for in vain by mere mechanical operators.

To strength he just observes, that although the stubble on their public chin, be horny and unyielding as a comb; he wields a razor that shall raze it even with the skin, or a day's growth under if requested; and with such ease and safety as to render the operation a luxury to the subject. Hours of attendance, Chicken crowing to born howling.

There can be no deduction in our price of shaving, although the passing of Maco's Bill shorter faces considerably.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 24.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTH DAY.

With the affectionate profound veneration which our citizens have always discovered for the character of Washington, the late anniversary of his birth was commemorated in Alexandria. The usual course of celebration, impressive without ostentation, mingling instruction with pleasure and patriotism with amusement, was observed on this occasion. The Washington Society, instituted soon after the death of our illustrious father, to accomplish his philanthropic design of educating the poor youth of Alexandria, paid its established tribute to his great good memory. From the City Hotel, where the members of that institution were convened as usual, they were escorted by the military, and followed by the interesting objects of their charity, to the Episcopal Church. The Society was there respectfully received by a numerous assembly of citizens and strangers; and, after a devout address from the reverend Chaplain to the supreme arbiter of nations, were gratified with an admirable Oration, by Robert G. Harper, Esq., one of their members. From the enthusiasm with which the praise of Washington is always heard, from the exalted reputation of Mr. Harper as a politician and orator, his audience were prepared to surrender their feelings to the fascination of eloquence, and their minds to the conviction of truth. With how much success he instructed the one and delighted the other, we shall afford the public a most pleasing evidence, by shortly presenting it with a Birth Day Oration, at once novel, erudite, wise and eloquent. To make striking applications of familiar truths, to extract important lessons from common unregarded occurrences, is the province of sagacity; and it is the happy power of genius to decorate exhausted topics with the graces and the charms of novelty. Let our future Birth Day Orators despair of success, tho' less fertile than Mr. Harper in resources of learning, or less happy in facilities of genius: for the curriculum of Washington will be always heard with emotion, while his wisdom shall be respected, his virtues loved and his achievements remembered. Our esteem and gratitude are still lively; and it requires not a tempest to waft a skiff, or the arm of Hercules to bend a twig.

The Ball Room of the City Tavern was decorated with taste and elegance. One of its most conspicuous ornaments was an allegorical painting of Mr. Cusis, in honor of his illustrious relative. On a spacious canvass was represented an elevated monument, with a statue of Washington in the Roman Costume, surrounded with emblems of war and peace. On one side the monument, a veteran warrior is bending with thoughtful manly sorrow; while the genius of liberty reclines, with weeping grace and dignity, on the other. Cherubs are suspending wreaths on the tomb and surrounding it with scrolls. A majestic eagle hovers in the clouds, and descending Fame drops a garland on the hero's brow. Of this performance, if presented as the finished work of a master, it would be extravagant to speak highly; but, as the production of untaught inexperienced talent, it would be difficult to be too warm in its praise: and, indeed, so great has been the success of Mr. Cusis in both execution and design, that we may almost venture to say of painters, what Horace has remarked of poets, that "they are born and not made." But the most engaging and splendid ornament of the assembly, was its brilliant display of female grace and beauty; for the charms of nature and art appeared to vie with each other. If there be any truth in the sentiment of Castellan, "that an army of insinators would conquer the universe," how could our fair sovereigns more effectually animate the doubtful courage of the nation, or incite us to emulate the example of Washington, than, by these exhibitions of their beauty and grace, to remind us how much happiness and honor we enjoy in being their protectors!

THE WASHINGTON SOCIETY, at their anniversary meeting on Thursday last, made choice of the following gentlemen for their Officers for the ensuing year:

E. C. DICK, President.
WM. HERBERT, 1st Vice-President.
C. SIMMS, 2d do.
Rev. J. MUIR, Chaplain.
JACOB HOFFMAN, Treasurer.
G. DENEALE, Secretary.

Extract of a letter from an officer in the American army, to a gentleman in this city, dated "Camp Dearborn, (Mississippi Territory) Dec. 20, 1809.

"For a relation of the movements of the army I refer you to a bulletin published in the Natchez Chronicle, of the 15th instant which I send you. The bulletin, though written in a severe style of wit, unfortunately contains the truth. Read it and save me the pain of entering into particulars.

"The army when reviewed at New Orleans in April, by gen. Wilkinson, contained upwards of 2,000 men—the number was more than 1,900 when we pitched our tents at Terra aux Boeuf. One half of this army is gone. Except between one and two hundred who have deserted, the rest are inhabitants of other regions. The suffering, of the army at Terra aux Boeuf cannot be understood by any one who did not behold them. Such distresses no troops should have been subjected to in time of peace. The history of them would be a satire upon any country. Eight and ten deaths occurred almost every day during the months of July and August. The sentries unprotected from the burning sun, after a night of prodigious rain, which would shower through the tents and drench every thing, have frequently fallen dead on their posts. Three men when relieving each other at a particular post, I well remember, fell dead in succession. During the day our eyes were continually assailed by objects of misery, wailing, groaning and dying under the different trees. During the night the cries of suffering men sounding in our ears and melting our hearts, hooted at all attempts upon, and chased sleep from the weary eye. The poor soldiers, driven mad by despair, often ended their sufferings by stabbing themselves to the heart.

"The officers, touched to the soul by the situation of the men, drew up a paper for the removal of the camp. Gen. Wilkinson would not receive it. He declared himself to be the best judge of what was proper, and remarked that papers of this sort paraded of insubordination. Many valuable officers resigned their commissions; all were disappointed, but they bore up for the present, looking forward to an event which seems now to be certain. Conjectures are various, but the most probable is that Wilkinson's call to Washington can be nothing less than his entire removal from the army.

"When the officers manifested such discontent, how could it be expected that the soldiers would not show symptoms of dissatisfaction? The officers dared to move for a change of stations; the soldiers ventured to signify a wish for better provisions. A paper to this effect circulated among them for signatures. They had in conversation expressed a certain dislike to the man who brought such woes upon them. The mind of intrigue and corruption, old and grey in plots of treason, found no difficulty in conjuring up a demon from the appearance of a shadow. Mutiny was the outcry. Unrestrained talk was called an actual attempt at mutiny; an innocent paper was branded with the name of a bond of infamy. Eight soldiers were arrested, hand-cuffed, and imprisoned. All but three are tried. One is acquitted entirely—three are sentenced to run the gauntlet, and the sentence of the fifth is unknown. The general, in the wonderful disposition, extends the arm of mercy, and the drama is closed by an epilogue worthy of the tragical farce of Chronos and Phobos. So much for the mutiny said to be started by some citizens of Orleans, the object of which was to burn the city, plunder the bank, threaten the country, and kill the general!

On the 18th instant the troops were reviewed by brigadier-general Wade Hampton. Only three hundred and fifty men were able to present themselves! General Wilkinson's farewell address was read by his aid. Hampton succeeded to the command. If no restraint had been imposed upon the feelings, the one would have been hailed with the loudest acclamations of joy and respect; the other would have received the hoots of indignant men, contemning and despising him."

Congress of the United States.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

FRIDAY, February 23.

[Taken for the Alexandria Gazette.]

Sundry private petitions and reports on petitions were presented and referred.

Mr. P. B. Porter from the committee to whom was referred the resolutions on roads and canals, reported a bill "For the improvement of the United States, by roads and canals." Read twice and referred to a committee of the whole next Monday week.

Mr. Clopton from the committee to whom was referred so much of the President's message as relates to fortifications, made a report. This covered documents giving an account of the present state of all the fortifications in the United States. The committee stated that no more money would be wanted for that object in the year 1810.—Laid on the table.

A motion was made to take up the unfinished business of yesterday, [Mr. Macon's bill, which was not decided last evening.] This motion was negatived.

On motion of Mr. Johnson the report of the committee of claims on the petition of Elizabeth Hamilton, was taken up in committee of the whole.—Mr. MACON in the chair.

TO PARENTS.

The sacred cause of cures performed by HAMILTON'S
CELEBRATED WORM DESTROYING LOZENGES.

(Selected from a very numerous list.)

ARE presented as indubitable proof of the excellence and safety of this valuable specific, for destroying worms in the human stomach and intestines.

From Mrs. Benjamin Williams, No. 30, Baltimore street, two doors above south Gay-street.

I have a son six years of age, who for four years past, has been generally in a very unhealthy state; particularly in summer; frequently afflicted with alarming convulsion fits, the whole of his little frame wasted fast, his breath foetid, and almost constant itching at the nose was excited, with other alarming symptoms. During the course of the above period, the advice and attendance of three of the most eminent physicians in Baltimore were successively procured. Each of these gentlemen, in his turn, declared worms to be the cause of the child's disorder, and exhausted his skill in attempting to expel them. Pink root, steel filings, with a variety of other medicines, were administered without the least success. It was once pronounced impossible for the child to live many hours.

I had heard of your Worm Destroying Lo-zenges, but with many others did not think highly of so cheap a medicine, until a gentleman of my acquaintance (Mr. Wm. S. Moore, auctioneer) in whose family they had been used with good effect, advised me to make trial of them; I accordingly gave my son a dose agreeable to directions, which soon expelled eight large worms, some of them about eight inches in length; a second dose brought away four more of similar size; a third dose being administered, no worms appeared. The child recovered and now enjoys a good state of health.

BENJAMIN WILLIAMS.

AFFIDAVIT.

Michael Duffy, residing at No. 47, Walkes street, Fell's Point, in the city of Baltimore voluntarily maketh oath that the following statement is just and true:

In the beginning of May last, my three children, a boy of seven, and two girls the one five, and the other three years of age were taken very ill, nearly at the same time, of a common fever, as I then supposed; but was soon convinced the disorder was caused by worms. They were frequently troubled with convulsion fits, and violent startings in their sleep, and with almost continual vomiting and purging, particularly the youngest. I made immediate application to a physician of the first reputation, and his medicines were administered with a confidence of success, which only increased our disappointment. The children grew daily weaker, and I was absolutely without hopes of their recovery. The youngest soon appeared almost devoid of animation, and scarcely an inhabitant of this world. In this distressing moment I was told that Hamilton's Worm Destroying Lozenges had performed many cures in cases equally desperate. I immediately purchased a box, and gave each of them a dose, which in a few hours produced the most desirable effects.— The eldest voided a great number of very large worms, and the second thousands of small ones, many of them not a quarter of an inch—in the youngest they seemed to be consumed, and had the appearance of skin and slimy matter. I repeated the dose agreeable to the paper of directions, and they all speedily recovered a good state of health, which they still enjoy, though 5 months have nearly elapsed, since they were on the borders of the grave, and the death of the whole seemed to be inevitable.

J. SMITH.

Sworn before me, this 26th day of September, 1799.

Philadelphia, August 5 1806.

TO H. LEE.

Some time last spring I was afflicted with loss of appetite, giddiness in the head, fever, and great debility, so that I could scarcely walk. In this distressing situation I took many things, but without benefit. An acquaintance in the country sent me to procure a box of Hamilton's Lozenges. Curiosity prompted me to read the directions, where I found my complaint exactly described by the doctor. I immediately sent for another box of the Lozenges, and took one dose, which brought away a large quantity of worms, and I felt greatly relieved. Encouraged by this, I took another dose, which was attended with the happiest effects, as it relieved me entirely, and am now in a better state of health than for a considerable time.
The nose, and about the seat—convulsions, epileptic fits, and sometimes a privation of speech—irregular appetite, sometimes eating food and sometimes voracious—purging with slimy and foetid stools—vomiting—large and hard belly—pains and sickness at the stomach—pains in the head and thighs, with lowness of spirits—slow fever, with small and irregular pulse—a dry cough—excessive sweat—sometimes pale and unhealthy countenance, and sometimes the face bloated and flushed.

Persons afflicted with the above symptoms, should have recourse to Hamilton's Worm Destroying Lozenges, which have been consistently attended with success in all complaints similar to those above described.

Prevention better than Cure.

In cases of head ache, foul stomach, and for removing superfluous bile, perhaps no remedy has been discovered superior to LEE'S HAHN'S ANTIBILIOUS PILLS;
Which for 40 years past have been attended with the greatest success. The testimony of many respectable persons in our southern sea ports has been adduced who have reason to believe that a timely use of this salutary remedy during the prevalence of malignant fevers, has preserved their health after experiencing alarming symptoms of fever.

Certificate of Wm. Devenny.

During the last nine years I have been in the habit of using Hahn's Antibilious Pills, prepared by the late Mr. Lee, whenever colds, head ache, or costiveness have rendered medicine necessary; in these cases a single dose has uniformly removed my head ache, and has generally been found sufficient to remove every symptom of a cold, if taken on its first appearance. Induced by the benefit I have received, I have for years past recommended them to many of my friends, and I have the pleasure to inform you, they have invariably succeeded in removing the above complaints.

Yours, WM. DEVENNY,

Linkerton's Collection of Voy- ages and Travels.

Forming a complete History of the Origin and Progress of Discovery by Sea and Land, from the most authentic Sources.

THE first number of this valuable Work is just come to hand and is ready for inspection at the store of the subscriber, in King-street, and with Mr. Triplett, at the coffee-house.

Fully aware of the impositions that have been practised upon the public by strangers soliciting subscriptions from distant places; the Editors invite their examination of a Work perhaps the most useful, entertaining as well as extensive in its kind that has ever been undertaken in any country. And they flatter themselves that the American will by no means shrink from a comparison with the London edition, tho' offered at six dollars per Vol. less.

This number may be considered as a fair specimen of the execution of the work, and will be left a short time for examination, before the 2d number is put to press. After this the subscription will be raised to $3 25 each number; and but a few more copies printed than are sufficient to supply the subscribers, that the early patrons of this valuable Work may have a decided advantage—subsequent applications may therefore come too late.

It is also the intention of the Editor to annex to the last number a complete list of names of the subscribers, as the patrons and encouragers of useful knowledge, the arts and literature of the United States.

Subscriptions are received by the subscriber.

Preston, situate on the Washington and Alexandria turnpike road, at the junction of four mile creek and Potomac river, and distant two miles from Alexandria, three from Washington and five from George Town.— There are upon the premises a two story dwelling house, containing six rooms and a passage, with a kitchen, carriage house, stables, &c. a large, handsome and highly manured garden, of at least ten acres, in a high state of cultivation, and lately laid off by an experienced gardener, an orchard containing several hundred pear, plum, cherry and damson trees, with English walnut, quince and mulberry trees, and also upwards of six hundred apple trees, and two or three hundred peach trees, selected with care from the best nurseries, and all in full bearing. The annual average product of the apple orchard alone is estimated at 400 barrels. This tract contains about 100 acres of land, a considerable part whereof has been manured and sown with clover seed. The shores afford fish and wild fowl, and one or two good fishing landings. The situation is healthy, elevated and pleasant, in full view of three towns, and is well calculated for a place of public entertainment. Immediate possession may be had and the terms will be made known upon application to Eight acres known by the name of Purkes' garden, bounded in part by King-street continued by the property of col. Peyton, Mr.

Hooff and the last mentioned lot.

These lots of ground are understood to be perfectly clear of the conflicting claims which have lately been agitated with respect to a part of the land in their vicinity.

A title deed will be made and immediate possession given. The purchaser will be required to give bond for the purchase money, payable by equal portions in one, two, and three years, bearing interest from the date, and a lien retained on the property till payment.

COLIN AULD.

Public Sale.

At one o'clock, P. M. on SATURDAY the 10th day of February next, the subscriber will offer for sale, at the coffee house,

A Lot of Ground on the north side of King street, between Fairfax & Water streets, extending in front on King street 34 feet 4 inches, in depth 90 feet, bounded on the north by Ramsay's alley.

The sale will be made under a deed of trust to the subscriber, and an indisputable title conveyed to the purchaser. A credit of three, six, and 9 months will be allowed o-good negotiable notes with an approved en-dorsor. A lien on the property will be retained until payment.
